DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Wilson-Kemp House was constructed in 1902-1903 in Russellville, Arkansas. This two storey, red brick home is noted for its massive front portico which is supported by two large, round columns with Doric capitals. This pair of columns extends from the second storey portico down to a foundation of locally quarried stone. The upper balcony extends across the front and around one half of the east side of the house. It is guarded by a wooden railing with square pitch-pine balusters, painted white.

The house sits on a beautiful corner lot surrounded by massive oak and elm trees which were planted in the early 1900's by the original owner, Judge R.B. Wilson. The sidewalk leading from the house to the street is of hand quarried stone hauled to the site by mule team and wagon. Original hitching posts of the same rock, capped by steel rings, stand to the east and north of the house.

A decorative brick wall surrounds the porch on the first floor level. Seven smaller columns support the porch. Access to the porches is provided by central entries on each storey accented by a transom and sidelights of beveled glass. An oval stained glass window enhances the beauty of the portico's center gable.

The back of the house is embellished by a two storey porch running the entire width of the house. Original ornamental woodwork and tongue and groove flooring still exist. Latticework screens the lower back porch. The original servants quarters, which was a two-room frame cottage, still stands at the back of the house.

The entrance features a massive center hall with built-in settee at the base of the stairs. The center hall is flanked by large rooms and a feeling of openness exists there due to ten foot doorways between the rooms. However, sliding wall panels permit privacy, when desired.

The original house had six upstairs bedrooms placed on either side of a long hall. When the house was sold in 1963, these were changed into two upstairs apartments. The present owner intends to return the house to a one-family dwelling. When the house was built, wall-to-wall carpeting, an innovation for 1903, was installed. A portion of this original carpet remains in the upstairs hall.

There are two fireplaces in the house. The living room fireplace is of decorative cast iron and features a central beveled mirror flanked by two small beveled mirrors. The second fireplace is constructed of geometrically arranged red tile.

The original well house remains attached to the southwest corner of the house. It is now being used as a den with the original brick walls exposed and the pump and cistern still useable and prominently displayed.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

R.B. Wilson, born May 26, 1850, in Tennessee, moved to Arkansas with his family and made a name for himself as a lawyer, circuit judge and planter. He became known throughout Arkansas for his many philanthropic endeavors at enhancing the cultural qualities of his adopted state. In 1878, while serving as Pope County Judge, he was instrumental in making the decision to move the County Seat from Dover to Russellville, a very controversial issue at that time.

Judge Wilson felt that women had suffered greatly as a result of the Civil War. This attitude prompted his gift of land for a U.D.C. Park in Russellville to the United Daughters of the Confederacy. It was his hope that this land could be made into a local recreational area. The judge, who died in 1928, was most instrumental in bringing Arkansas Tech to Russellville.

In 1902, Judge Wilson began construction of an imposing two-storey brick structure. Elaborate, even for a period of history renowned for architectural embellishments, it soon became an attraction. Judge and Mrs. R.B. Wilson and their five children moved into the house in 1903. The address was 408 Franklin Street and later would be changed to 214 East Fifth Street.

The exterior of the house remains unaltered since its early twentieth-century construction. The massive portico is supported by a pair of round Doric-capital columns. There are two-storey porches on the front and back of the house. The interior woodwork is of fine-grained pine with lovely heart of pine flooring.

The family of W.B. Wilson lived in the house until 1963, at which time a duplex was built on the grounds which formerly served as an orchard. At that time, Miss Adalissa Wilson and her brother R.B. Wilson, JR. moved into the duplex and sold the house to Mr. and Mrs. Lear Kemp. The Kemps remodeled the lower floor of the house and turned the upstairs into two apartments. In 1974, the Kemps left the home and it remained for sale until 1977. At that time, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Thurlby purchased it and intend to restore the house, as much as possible, to its original condition.

The Wilson-Kemp house with its two-storey massiveness, is one of the most architecturally interesting structures in Russellville. Built by a successful businessman about the turn of the century, the home illustrates the tastes of a financially important figure in Pope County's past.

Re: Wilson-Kemp House
Russellville, Pope County

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Thurlby:

The staff of the Arkansas Historic Preservation Program is preparing a National Register nomination for the Wilson-Kemp House which will be presented to the Arkansas State Review Committee at their September meeting. If approved, the nomination will be submitted to the National Register office in Washington for final consideration.

The National Register of Historic Places is a listing of historic sites, buildings, objects and districts from all across the country that are worthy of preservation.

Entry in the National Register is an honor which places no obligation on a private owner. It does, however, provide protection through comment by the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation from federally financed, assisted or licensed projects that might affect a National Register property.

On October 4, 1976, the President signed a Tax Reform Act of which Section 2124 refers to tax incentives for historic properties. Enclosed you will find an information sheet on that tax act.

If you have any questions concerning the program or this property's nomination, please contact Dianna Kirk of our staff.

Enclosed are two copies of this letter. Please complete the form below, sign and return the original to our office. The copy is for your files. We would appreciate receiving any comments you might have concerning the nomination of this property. If we do not hear from you within 30 days, your approval will be assumed.

Sincerely,

Barbara Woodard
