Description

During the Development Era (1835-1870) in White County a variety of vernacular houses were constructed. They were also built out of a variety of materials. Surviving examples from this period, however, are very limited. The Mary Alice Hammond House is a good example of a single-story, single-pile with central hall frame house. Originally the house was sided with weatherboard but is currently clad with novelty siding. It has a composition shingle gable roof and the structure rests on a stone foundation which runs the length of the building. This building was originally constructed in Searcy c. 1870. At that time, it was located on the northeast corner of what is now called W. Race St. and N. Birch. This intersection is only ten blocks west of the courthouse square which was once a center of activity. In 1954 the building was moved to its present location in Morning Sun so that a Baptist Church could be built in its place. The house now resides on the south side of County Road 839 one-quarter of a mile west of State Road 367.

The main, or north elevation, of the structure is dominated by a one-story, shed roofed porch which is supported by simple wooden box columns. This porch has been reconstructed and probably dates to when the house was moved. The centrally placed door is flanked by side-lights which consist of double-pane glazing over single-panel kicks. A three-light transom tops the entrance. The entire doorway is capped by a decorative hood-mold. Symmetrically placed four-over-four double-hung wood sash windows flank the entrance. These windows are also adorned with hood-molds similar to the one over the entrance. Other facade details include corner boards with capitals and a wide cornice board. The east elevation, like the western one, originally terminated with a brick exterior end chimney and gable returns. These were probably removed when the structure was moved. A single four-over-four double-hung wood sash window is situated north of center on this elevation. A flat roofed carport is also present on this elevation.

A rear ell, gable roof addition is also found along this side of the original building. It has a single door and window which are symmetrically placed. The window is a six-over-six double-hung sash window. A single, centrally placed, six-over-six double-hung sash window is located on the south elevation of the ell. Connecting the south elevation of the original building and the west elevation of the ell is a shed roof addition. Fenestration in this addition consists of a paired window on the south elevation and symmetrically placed single windows on the west elevation. All of these windows are six-over-six double-hung sash windows. On the west elevation of the original building is a single four-over-four double-hung wood sash window. It is placed north of center.

When this building was constructed, c. 1870, it was one of numerous one-story, single-pile with central hall, wood frame houses constructed in White County during the Development Era. Several of these were located in Searcy. Even though this house has been moved, it is the only one of this type which survives relatively unaltered from this period of Searcy's history. In fact, there remain only five frame, single-pile with central hall floor plan buildings in the entire county that date from this period and retain any degree of integrity.

This residence was originally located on a relatively rural site outside of the commercial center of Searcy; however, as that downtown expanded, its' original site became threatened by commercial encroachment, and would have been demolished had it not been moved. Also, its current rural location is quite similar to that on which it was originally built. Therefore it is eligible under Criterion C with local significance.

Reviewer's Comments

The boundaries of this property are presently located along building lines. A resource listed in the National Register should include all features of the property which contribute to its significance. In almost all cases this includes its historic setting. Page 77 of National Register Bulletin 16, Guidelines for Completing National Register of Historic Places Forms, states that "the boundaries of buildings should include the land surrounding the building, unless the lot occupied by the building contains no surrounding land as in the central business district of most cities."

Please revise the boundaries to include the property historically associated with the resource. If a portion of the original setting has lost its integrity, please explain.
