Description

The Faust House (at 114 Richmond Hill) is a single-story, wood frame and brick masonry residence designed in the Spanish Revival style. Its western or front elevation is dominated by a full-front porch composed of a ceramic tile shed roof over three broad arched openings divided by brick columns and spandrels, forming an arcade, with two more single arches at the northern and southern ends. A single-leaf front door and two pair of casement windows punctuate the brick wall behind, which is itself capped with a stepped parapet and coping. A single brick chimney is placed against the wall just east of the porch on the northern elevation. The house is fenestrated with an assortment of one-over-one sash and casement windows throughout, and a non-historic metal carport has been added to the rear. A continuous brick foundation supports the brick walls and flat asphalt roof.

ABSTRACT/SUMMARY COMMENTS:

The Faust House at 114 Richmond Hill is significant under National Register criterion C (Architecture), as an excellent local example of early twentieth century residential construction. Completed in 1924, the one-story brick home is a handsome well-preserved example of Spanish Period Revival-style design that recalls the prosperity of West Helena's boom period (1910-1930).
