DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

Henderson Hall, Culver-Stockton College, Canton, Missouri, faces east from its location on a bluff about one mile from the Mississippi River. Of modified T-shape plan, it is a two-story, red brick structure with full basement. Styled in the Neo-Classical manner, the building is dominated by a colossal, tetrastyle Ionic portico and crowned by a dome.

Measuring about 123' by 117' at its widest points, the structure has the basic shape of a modified T. A slight modification of the T-shape occurs in wings which are placed at right angles to the main (east-facing) block on the north and south ends. Extending only slightly from the body of the main block, they are accented with gables and cornices with partial returns, adding further visual interest to the east and west facades.

The building is constructed of red brick laid in common bond, with a foundation of rock-faced, coursed stone. Windows are regularly spaced and rectangular, each consisting of a hinged transom over one-over-one light, double-hung sash. Those on the main block and wings are trimmed with stone lugsills and cut stone, radiating lintels with keystones, while those on the rear section (the stem of the T), are capped with segmental brick arches with radiating voussoirs. Oeuil-de-boeuf windows occur in the gable fields of the wings.

The roof is hipped, forming gables over the wings and portico, and is covered with a standing-steam tin roof painted red. Atop the center of the roof sits an aluminum dome. Square and octagonal drums provide the structural transition to the dome. The dome was added in 1960, as a replacement for the original dome, which was damaged during a summer storm. One brick chimney extends through the fabric of the roof of the stem of the T.

The roof is trimmed with a boxed cornice embellished in the Classical manner with modillions and a dentate band. The major decorative feature, the central portico on the primary (eastern) elevation, is similarly styled in the Classical fashion. Rising a full two stories, the pedimented entablature is supported by four, unfluted Ionic columns and two pilasters. The shafts of these columns and pilasters are composed of brick with a plaster coating. The entablature consists of a fasciated architrave, frieze (once emblazoned with the former college name, Christian University), and cornice identical to the main cornice. The pediment above is trimmed with a similar raking cornice; a roundel is centered in the tympanum.

In addition to the replacement of the original dome in 1960, modifications have been made on the rear (west) of the building. These alterations include the bricking in of certain windows, the replacement of part of the foundation and exterior wall of the westernmost end with new brick, and the addition of rear entrances. However, as these modifications are minimal and confined to the rear elevation, they detract little from the appearance of the building, which remains much the same as when originally constructed in 1903.

Extensive renovations in 1967-68, during which time the building was completely closed, drastically changed the interior of the building. Therefore, although a modern, efficient facility, the interior is not of historic interest.

In general, Henderson Hall is in good structural condition. However, plastered brick columns of the front (east) portico are deteriorating and in need of restoration. The building is in constant use for class instruction, lectures and administrative activities. Its preservation is insured as part of an active, growing, college community.

in the search for an appropriate location, wrote a glowing description of the spot:

Here on the summit of two of a circle of hills, divided by a vale so virgin in its primitive luxuriance of forest and tangled wood that twilight lingers at midday beneath its bough, are to arise the structures dedicated to the equal culture of the male and female mind.³

Construction of the first building, known later as Old Main, was begun in 1853 and completed in 1855. On March 23, 1903, after only 50 years of service, Old Main was entirely devastated by fire. The college President, Dr. Carl Johann, immediately resolved to rebuild and set about the arduous task of soliciting funds.

Within ten days after the fire, the citizens of Canton raised $15,000 for a new building, $8,000 were collected on insurance, $4,000 worth of stone and brick were saved from the wreck, and plans were immediately made to rebuild on a much larger scale than before. During the summer as my duties would permit, I solicited help in different parts of the state, and secured $3,000.⁴

Plans and specifications for the new building to replace Old Main were prepared by Legg and Holloway, architects of St. Louis, Missouri. Contractors were invited to submit bids on or before May 14, 1903, and at the meeting of the Board of Trustees on May 30, 1903, the contract was awarded to William R. Oder of Canton for the sum of $31,353.00. The new building was completed and occupied by May 15, 1904, at a final cost of $42,000.00.⁵ As funds were still short for payment of construction costs, on August 24, 1904, famed orator William Jennings Bryan spoke on the university campus to help raise the urgently needed funds.⁶ The building was named Henderson Hall in honor of D. Pat. Henderson, one of the founders of the university and the first President of the Board of Trustees. In 1917 the name Christian University was changed to Culver-Stockton College in recognition of Mary E. Culver and R.H. Stockton, outstanding benefactors of the institution.

D. PAT. HENDERSON

David Patterson Henderson (1810-1897) was born in Lexington, Kentucky, on May 18, 1810. Raised in Kentucky, he attended Cane Run Seminary and later taught school in Fayette County. In 1831 he moved with his family to Jacksonville, Illinois, but he returned to Georgetown, Kentucky the following year on account of illness. In Georgetown he began preaching, and in the fall of 1832 he returned to Jacksonville, where he began in the ministry of the Christian Church. A man of many talents and interests, he also served as Clerk of the Court and as Probate Judge in Morgan County, Illinois, and studied medicine at Illinois College from 1847-48, all the while continuing his preaching.⁸

In 1837 Henderson married Eliza Smedley in Jacksonville. In 1848 he moved to Columbia, Missouri, where he served as pastor of the First Christian Church for five years. He was instrumental in the founding of both Christian College in Columbia and Christian University in Canton.⁹ Respected "...throughout the brotherhood for his wide interests and statesmanlike qualities," he was an excellent speaker, an able preacher, and a tireless fundraiser.¹⁰ He was the "...moving spirit in the founding and endowing of the University" in Canton and served as President of the Board of Trustees until 1865.¹¹ Henderson died in Canton on February 11, 1897.

HENDERSON HALL

Henderson Hall was built in 1903 to replace the earliest college building, "Old Main," which had burned on March 23rd of the same year. The earlier building, which is pictured in a photograph dating ca. 1888, was an imposing structure designed in the Classical Revival tradition. A three-story, brick structure, it was accented with a colossal, hexastyle portico in the Corinthian order and a central dome.¹²

Although Henderson Hall is by no means an imitation of the first, it is evident that it was designed with the earlier building well in mind. It presents a similarly imposing facade, with a tetrastyle Ionic portico and a central dome. Whereas the earlier building was constructed in the Classical Revival style still popular in Missouri in the 1850's, Henderson Hall well illustrates the Neo-Classical Revival which was current at the beginning of the twentieth century.

The survey of Missouri's historic sites is based on the selection of sites as they relate to theme studies outlined in "Missouri's State Historic Preservation Plan." Therefore, Henderson Hall is being nominated to the National Register of Historic Places as an example of the themes of "Architecture," and "Education."

Dear Senator Danforth:

I welcomed the opportunity to meet you when you spoke at our Commencement exercises this past May, and as a new citizen of Missouri, hope that from time to time I can be of service to our State and to you as you represent it.

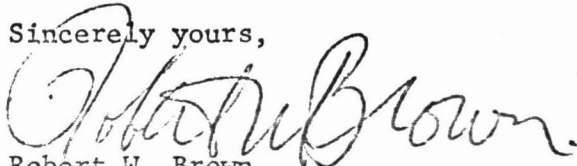

Let me place with you a copy of a letter addressed to Dr. Colman K. Winn, College Archivist. This letter was sent from the Missouri Department of Natural Resources and in essence it points out that the Missouri Advisory Council of Historic Preservation has approved the nomination of Henderson Hall to the National Register of Historic Places. This means that if approved at the federal level, this building will be declared a national landmark.

Henderson Hall, briefly, is an historic administration classroom building, the site of which dates back to the Civil War when it was known as "Old Main," and occupied by Union troops. Speaking for the college and the citizens of Northeast Missouri, it is our hope that this will, in fact, be declared a national landmark.

Your personal interest and support would be much appreciated. I will not burden you at this time with a lengthy history of the historic building, but our archivist would be happy to provide it should you wish same.

You have my very best wishes and my support.

Sincerely yours,

Robert W. Brown

It has come to my attention that the Missouri Advisory Council on Historic Preservation has approved the nomination of Henderson Hall to the National Register of Historic Places. Henderson Hall, located in Canton, occupies the site of a former building, "Old Main," which was taken by Union troops during the Civil War and was used for the housing of soldiers and horses.

I understand this nomination will soon be forwarded to the Keeper of the National Register for a final determination. I would appreciate your keeping me advised of the status of this proposal.
